Prize for General Practice 2019

RACGP SA&NT

GP Supervisor Assessment Form for The University of Adelaide

General practice provides person centered, continuing, comprehensive and coordinated whole person health care to individuals and families in their communities. The Royal Australian College of General Practitioners (RACGP) is responsible for maintaining standards for quality clinical practice, education and training, and research in Australian general practice. The RACGP has the largest general practitioner membership of any medical organisation in Australia.

The RACGP SA&NT has established an annual student 'Prize for General Practice'. The prize will be awarded to a University of Adelaide and Flinders University recipient. The prize is presented at graduation, with each winner receiving $500.

Final year students are invited to nominate for the RACGP Prize for General Practice.

General Practice fosters health, wellbeing and resilience through the continuing patient-doctor relationship. As a general specialist, a career in General Practice will be challenging, spanning prevention, health promotion, early intervention and the management of acute, chronic and complex conditions. It also offers a flexible environment to performing these roles with a broad cross section of the community involving the home, practice, health service, outreach clinic or hospital.

To apply for the RACGP Prize for General Practice, students will need to self-nominate by seeking feedback from their supervisor in their GP attachment (please see page 2). Applications will be ranked with a weighting of 50% based on academic merit (results in the final exam*), and 50% on feedback from the GP supervisor. The feedback will assess the student's commitment to general practice, employability, communication and knowledge skills.

*Final exam: end of fifth year, one submission per student.

Please note that rural health students at The University of Adelaide may nominate a general practice from their fifth year, and all other University of Adelaide students in their sixth year GP placement.

Please tick one of the options below
