RACGP Queensland New Fellows Committee presents: Hot Topics

This full-day educational workshop is a degustation for the mind with six one-hour presentations on topical issues including:

- Genetic testing
- Cardiovascular risk assessment and management
- Childhood obesity
- Focused psychological skills
- Environmental health
- Technology in general practice

You will have the opportunity to engage in discussion with the presenters towards the end of each topic.

A brief networking function will immediately follow the workshop. Mingle with fellow GPs and meet some representatives from RACGP to tell us what other events you'd like from your faculty.

Afterwards, challenge a fellow GP or bring along your friends and families to play a round of putt-putt. Sign up on the day (at an additional cost).

All RACGP members welcome.

Presenters

Dr Michael Gattas trained as a paediatrician before completing further training in genetics. He has a particular interest in familial cancers. He has a great deal of experience in testing for genetic disorders.

Dr Jaclyn Montefiore is a GP in Paddington. Prior to fellowship she was an accredited practising dietitian. With 20 years experience in medicine and dietetics, she is passionate about using simple lifestyle measures to improve health outcomes.

Dr Lucinda (Lucy) Ingram is a GP / supervisor in Toowoomba. She completed her FARGP with advanced rural skills in child and adolescent health in 2015. In 2016 she launched the paediatrics outpatient service at Kingaroy.

Dr Caroline Russell is a GP and psychotherapist at Foundations Counselling and Mental Health. She is committed to walking beside those who struggle more with life, to a wiser, and more functional future.

Dr David King is a GP academic at the University of Queensland, teaching EBM and GP subjects for a number of decades. He is the immediate past chair of Doctors for the Environment Australia (DEA) Queensland.

Dr Peter Adkins is a GP / supervisor in Birkdale and clinical advisor at Brisbane South PHN. He has a long interest in health information management and was an inaugural board member of Health Informatics Society of Australia.
