Dermatology accounts for 16% of general practice presentations. Skin conditions are a major source of morbidity, and can be the first presentation of serious systemic disease, including infection and malignancy.

This interactive workshop will provide GPs with the skills to increase their confidence in diagnosing, treating and referring a range of skin conditions, including cancers. Theoretical and practical components will cover procedural skills in dermoscopy and suturing techniques.

Program

- Common skin presentations – is it bacterial, viral or fungal?
- Management of common skin conditions
- Dermoscopy – practical session*
- Skin cancer excision and suturing – practical session.

*If possible, please bring your own dermatoscope. (A small number will be available.) Participants will have the opportunity to check each other's skin.

Presenters

Dr Karen Koh, Dermatologist

Dr Paul Fishburn, GP specialist in skin cancer

A/Prof John Pyne, GP skin specialist

Dr Craig James, Dermatopathologist
