

Environmental sustainability in general practice

As Australians face the escalating adverse health impacts of climate change, general practice must actively contribute to the preservation of our environment.

Find out more

RACGP